

Are you prepared with the BEST TOOLS to directly address the LIFE-ALTERING BEHAVIOR OF EARLY SEXUAL ACTIVITY?

The HIGHEST LEVEL Conference

Enhance your skills and strengthen your base of information to help today's young people achieve the highest level of physical and emotional health.

Know that you are equipped in providing youth a sound sexual health message by:

- Addressing the whole person
- Providing evidence-based information
- Approaching problems with a primary prevention perspective

This conference is recommended for school health educators, nurses, social workers, counselors, and therapists (and those in training for these disciplines) who work in student programs and professional levels of practice.

Dr. Bush will explore the epidemic of STIs seen in today's adolescent population and the impact of early sexual activity on the brain, relationships and commitment.

FREDA M. BUSH, MD, FACOG, President/CEO of the Medical Institute for Sexual Health, co-author of Hooked: New Science on How Casual Sex is Affecting Our Children.

Ms. Mosack will examine the public health model used to address risk behaviors, including teen sex, and the benefits of a holistic, theory-based approach to sex education while outlining the consequences of normalizing early sexual activity among youth.

MARY ANNE MOSACK, B.A., S.R.A.S.T., Executive Director of ASCEND, President of Mosack Communication Consulting, and co-author of The War On Intimacy.

Dr. Rue will present the application and use of a novel framework for sexual risk counseling in clinical practice that provides an individualized, comprehensive and tailored sexual risk assessment for more effective youth analysis, service, and prevention efforts.

LISA RUE, PHD, University of Northern Colorado, Co-Founder Preventative Technology Solutions, Inc., co-developer of the OPTIONS model of Sexual Risk Assessment.
